Notable Weddings Today Brilliantly Attended.

Miss Parker Becomes the Wife of Mr. H. K. Willard.

OTHER HAPPY COUPLES

Henry C. Corbin were married at noon today at the Patten residence, 2122 Massachusetts avenue, in the presence of a notable assemblage, which included President and Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Alice Roosevelt and representatives of official, diplomatic and resident society. His eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, performed the marriage ceremony, Rev. D. J. Stafford, D.D., of St. Patrick's Church was in attendance upon him, Congratulations and the enjoyment of the wedding breakfast followed. Gen. Corbin and his bride left this afternoon for New York, where tomorrow they will attend the marriage of Col. George R. Dyer and Miss Grace Gurnee Scott before continuing their honeymoon trip-via Niagara to Montreal. Upon their return they will live at the Arlington until the completion of their future home in the West End now receiving its final touches.

The interesting personality of both the bride and groom has made the event of today more than ordinarily discussed since the announcement of the engagement last spring. The bride is the fourth daughter of the Patten household, and has inherited in a marked degree the good looks and pleasant temperament which made her mother, the late Mrs. Anastasia Patten, a very general favorite with the large circle who knew her in this city. After the death of her husband, who made a fortune in mining at Gold Hill, Nevada, Mrs. Patten took her five daughters to Europe and remained abroad with them eight years. After their return to this country she came to Washington, and upon the auvice of friends, decided to build a residence here. Her enjoyment of the splendid home, where the marriage of her second youngest child took place today, was but brief. Shortly after a deep lovery tint, and of an exquisitely settling here the first marriage in the family, that of Augusta Patten and John Glover of Missouri, then representative in Congress, took place. The bride's sisters, the elder Miss Patten, as hostess, and the others as attendants, were her only rela-tives present today.

Miss Patten received the guests, and was richly dressed in a costume of pale blue cloth trimmed with flowers, appliqued in

The bride came in with Senator John P. Jones of Nevada, a friend of her father in former days, at Gold Hill, Nev. She was preceded by her sisters, Miss Josephine Patten and Miss Helen Patten, who were dresses of white silk muslin. Quantities of Irish point trimmed the dress of the first named, and renaissance lace the other. Each wore a diamond bar pin, souvenir gifts to them from the bridegroom. General Corbin, who was attended by Colonel Dyer of New York, as best man, wore his full dress uniform, as did the members of his staff, who acted as ushers, and the other army officers present.

The bride's dress was of superb white satin. The trained skirt was very long and entirely without trimming. The bodice had a yoke of finely plaited tulle, from which fell a deep ruffle of point d'Alencon, forming a cape around the shoulders. The sleeves. after the latest Parislan fancy, were a bunchy puff from the elbows to the wrist, with deep cuffs of shirred tulle and satin. Around the softly plaited satin stock was worn her sister's wedding gift, a dog col-lar of diamonds and pearls, and the groom's gift, a brooch of diamonds surrounding a turquoise. Her veil was of point lace and extended to the edge of her train. A shower bouquet of lilies of the valley was carried. All the lace worn by the bride was part of her inheritance from her mother, who owned a great quantity of superb pieces, and has naturally apart from its intrinsic value, which is considerable, one even greater be-cause of these associations.

The ceremony took place in the drawing room, which extends the length of the mansion on the right of the hall entering from the porte cochere. It was elaborately decorated with flowers and plants.

When President Roosevelt with his wife and daughter arrived, the Secretary of War met them at the door and escorted the party to the front rank of the assemblage in the drawing room where they witnessed the ceremony.

General Corbin's daughter, Mrs. William

General Corbin's daughter, Mrs. William M. Parsons of New York, and her husband were present. His other children are Miss Grace Corbin, who is an invalid and resides in Ohio, and Mr. R. H. Corbin now in the Philippines. General Corbin's father. Shadrack Corbin, has reached the age of ninety and is hale and hearty.

The bride's going-away dress was of dark gray cloth made without a train. The opened jacket revealed a pink silk shirt walst. A stylish hat in dark colors was worn.

The presents received by the couple during the past ten days filled several 'arge rooms and additions were made up to the last moment. The articles are the most superb of their kind and their numbers mount up into the hundreds. Mrs. Corbin Jwns such quantities of plate that she can change her table furnishings three or four times a week and then not begin to exhaust her supply. The gifts include laces Tane tiques in gold, silver and porcelain, as well as jewelry, of which there is a dazzling collection. In addition to those already mentioned in these columns, Mrs. R. R. Hitt sent a swan-brooch with a large pearl surrounded with diamonds. Mrs. Albertine a set of antique China cups; Mrs. A. C. Barneys, a piece of rare porcelain, and Mr. Peter Marie of New York a gold clock in a Greek temple design. All the presents have been sent to a safe deposit company until the general's new residence is ready for occupancy.

Parker and Mr. Henry Kellogg Willard, also at noon today, was a home event, surrounded by every happy circumstance and detail that could possibly add to the importance and interest attending the union of two families, both of which stand so high in this community. The spacious residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Southard Parker, 1738 Connecticut avenue, was a garden of flowers, palms and foliage plants, arranged in each of the lower rooms in garden or nowers, paims and rollage plants, arranged in each of the lower rooms in tasteful harmony with the permanent decorations. In the drawing room white chrysanthemums adorned mantels and tables, and with a background of palms made a bower in the wide bay window where the couple stood to be married. When the bridgel party was about to extra the couple stood to be married. dal party was about to enter the room two young nieces of the bride, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Larner—Ruth Parker Larner and Mary Parker Larner—dressed in dainty white frocks, came forward, stretching broad white ribbons to the window bower to form a rich to the window. dow bower to form an aisle through which the bride advanced to the waiting clergy-men-Rev. Teunis S. Hamlin, D.D., of the Church of the Covenant, who officiated, assisted by Rev. R. R. Shippen, D.D., of Brockton, Mass., former pastor of All Souls' Church, and an intimate friend of the groom's family. The bride was escorted by her father, her only attendant being her sister, Miss Lucy Parker. The groom came in with his mother, Mrs. Henry A. Willard. The bride's dress was of Venetian lace of filmy design. The lower part of the skirt was in rich panels that fell over soft, thickly ruched ruffles of chiffon. The lace was relieved with the chiffon on the bodice, and the tulle veil was caught by a diamond sunburst, the gift of the groom. Her flowshould state the factor of the groom. Her now-ers, lilies of the valley, were arranged in a shower bouquet. The gown of the maid of honor was of blue crepe de chine, with cream lace trimmings. Her flowers were Willard, were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Willard, Willard, were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Willard, Dr. and Mrs. John C. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Willard, Mrs. Richards Bradley of Brattleboro', Vt.; Mrs. William F. Wesselhoeft of Boston, Miss May Bradley and Mr. S. Rowe Bradley, jr., of Nyack, N. Y., and Mr. J. Dorr Bradley of Chicago. Among the few personal friends, with those named, who witnessed the marriage, were Mr. H. W. Reed of this city, Lieut. Theodore F. Burgdorf, U. S. N., and Mr. and Mrs. George E. Howe and Miss Kalma Howe of Cambridge, Mass. The reception from 1 until 2:30 o'clock was attended by from 1 until 2:30 o'clock was attended by several hundred guests, many of whom had first attended the Corbin-Patten wedding, or were on their way to the reception. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Wil-lard left for a honeymoon jaunt, the desfew chosen confidents. They will reside on Westminster street upon their return. The bride's going-away costume was of dark blue cloth and a white and black hat. The bride's presents filled the large room in which they had been exhibited for some days to visiting friends. The collection would seem to have left no desire unful-filled for house and table essentials and or-naments, and all in the most elegant de-signs and costly materials.

Tuesday night a large crowd of young persons assembled at the residence of Mrs. Talbert, 323 4th street southeast, and made merry until a late hour. ### LOWER COURT AFFIRMED.

Suit for Damages. In an opinion, written by Mr. Justice Shepard, and handed down late yesterday afternoon, the Court of Appeals affirmed the decision of the lower court in the case of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the inspector of buildings against Frederick J. Miller. The District officials appealed from an order made by Justice Clabaugh, the 25th of last April, granting a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the Commissioners and the inspector of buildings to grant a permit to Frederick J. Miller to build two two-story and basement brick dwellings upon lot 1, in square 950, bounded by G and F, and 9th and 10th streets southeast. It was claimed by the petitioner that permission was refused by the District Commissioners upon the ground that the lot was not of the required depth-fifty feet-and for no other reason. The plaintiff, on the other hand, contended that although the lot was not fifty feet in depth, this depth was not necressary to health and safety.

District Loses on Appeal-Opinion is

The Court of Appeals late yesterday also handed down an opinion written by Mr. Chief Justice Alvey, affirming the judgment of the lower court in the case of Emma J. Clagett and Maurice J. Clagett against the Washington Market Comparison. Clagett and Maurice J. Clagett against the Washington Market Company and Prederick L. Grunewald, surviving partner of the firm of W. M. Moreland & Co. The original action was a suit for damages which was heard before Justice Clabaugh, and a decision in favor of the plaintiff for $1,000 was rendered by a jury. Mrs. Clagett slipped and fell on the morning of December 20, 1898, in front of the stall occupied by Moreland & Co., who are fish declers, in the south wing of the market. It was claimed that the accident was due to the careless manner in which the defindant, Grunewald, countenanced by the market Grunewald, countenanced by the market company, allowed piles of fish to remain in
